INTRODUCTION

Amateur wrestling is one of our finest interscholastic sports. Although it is one of many sports that involves both individual and team competition, the individual wrestler classified according to weight, seems to receive more recognition than in many other sports.

Hence, the ultimate of individual expression in wrestling is the tournament. The growing emphasis on multi-team wrestling tournaments, has presented a problem in organizing and administering such a tournament. Little has been done in the past to help the inexperienced coach obtain the necessary information needed to help him feel confident about volunteering to direct and host a tournament.

It is being recognized that the organization and administration of multi-team events is not something that is hit or miss, trial and error, or merely a matter of experience. There is evidence to show that well-organized sports competitions provide for increasingly better competition and allows more freedom to coaches, participants, and spectators.

The good organizer and/or administrator will get the job done by clear and exact procedures. It is hoped that this paper will be of some help in the multi-team tournament, both in organizing and coordinating of a team tournament.

At least a person possessing the ability to organize all the details prerequisite to a smooth running, successful tournament, is necessary. The athletic director, coach, or director of the tournament, cannot assume personal responsibility for all the myriad of details concerned with a well-organized wrestling tournament. He must delegate specific duties to other responsible, hard working, individuals.

Statement of Problem

This paper was designed as a guideline to provide necessary information for the planning and administration of a state high school wrestling tournament. Included in the study were such things as: a workable check list, the division and duties of committee chairmen, bracketing, scoring and pre- and post-tournament information.

Justification

Up to this time coaches hosting a large wrestling tournament have spent many necessary hours working out those details which take away from their available coaching time. Consequently, many coaches have developed their own way of organizing a tournament; however, little has been done to put these ideas in the form of check lists and other requisite information to help the beginning or inexperienced coach host a meet as large as a state championship tournament.

Method of Procedure

The method of procedure included a review of the literature. Periodicals, books, and publications were examined and partially used in compiling this study. In addition, the opinions of several respected and experienced coaches in the profession were also taken into consideration: Karl Kitt, Air Force Academy; Keith Loper, University of Nevada; Tom Jewell, Idaho State University; and Tracy Borah, Western State College.

Definition of Terms

To clarify some of the terms used in this study, the following definitions are used:

1. Anklets: Ankle bands worn by contestants to denote individual differences for scoring purposes.
2. Match: Signifies competition between a pair of wrestlers.
3. Matchmaker: The person who coordinates matches.
4. Session: A complete round of wrestling in a tournament.

REVIEW OF LITERATURE

History

From the birth of civilization, wrestling was acknowledged as one of the arts of war. Hunt and Miller (6) state that from his first struggles with wild beasts to those with his neighbors, man has locked himself in personal combat with enemies. Gallaher and Perry (3) further state that though savage in nature among the Egyptians Assyrians (3000 B.C.), it (wrestling) was a manly art. As civilizations grew through the different periods of time, wrestling matured into a popular sport as well as a means of defense. Ancient records verify that the highly developed sport of wrestling began at an early date and that all the major holds of the past are present today in modern wrestling.

To the Greeks, wrestlers were regarded as one of the best types of athletes. Because the Greek's stressed physical fitness, it was inevitable that competition be set up on a tournament basis. Historically, the first normally organized Greek wrestling tournament of any magnitude was the 704 B.C. Olympic Games.

Umbach and Johnson (19) suggest that the first Asiatic country to practice wrestling was China, but ascribed no date to its instigation in tournament form. Japan held its first tournament in the year 25 B.C. Like the Greek's, Japan held wrestlers in high regard. Japan's Sumo wrestlers, weighing between 300 and 400 pounds, performed for all public ceremonies, and are still popular in exciting tournaments today.

Wrestling matches among the American Indians were held long before the arrival of Christopher Columbus. However, as Umbach and Johnson (19) state, wrestling in the United States did not become organized until 1900, when the first dual meet was held between Yale and Pennsylvania University. Since that time nearly every state has had championship tournaments in their high schools as well as in their major universities. With the emphasis on the individual champion, rather than the team, tournaments are considered by most coaches to be the backbone of amateur wrestling.

The tremendous growth of wrestling in the United States presented the problem of standardizing rules. In 1927, the National Collegiate Athletic Association organized the Wrestling Rules Committee which was responsible for the uniformity of rules and the establishment of a standard code of ethics. Nearly all state high school associations follow the recommendation of the N. C. A. A. rules committee, regarding dual-meets and tournament competition.

Organization

In a state high school tournament each individual committee must be responsible for planning or organizing its specific area in order for the tournament to be considered a success. The director and his supervisory committee use organization for the attainment of a common purpose. Organization is a administration, while administration is only the means to a purpose.

Organization is broadly defined according to Brown as the state or manner of being arranged or constituted in interdependent parts, each having a special function, act, office, or relation with respect to the whole (1). It is the precise business of the organization to define and divide the parts of responsibility among its members. As Brown (1) continues his definition, he states that there is really little in human experience which does not exhibit some degree or aspect of organization.

If one man were being relied upon to carry out all the duties of running a tournament, think of how much time and strength would be involved. Concerted efforts from various participants make it possible for overall success.

The N. C. A. A.'s Wrestling Rules Committee was the result of the need for all states and schools to follow a standardized set of rules. The rules were based on the following objectives according to Umbach and Johnson (19): (a) To safeguard the wrestler from injury; (b) To make the sport enjoyable to the participants; (c) To make it interesting to the spectators.

Administration

Along with the great importance of successful organization, a tournament must have a competent director or administrator. The tournament director must have the qualities as Zeigler (23) states of being able to plan, to organize, to direct, to coordinate, and to control all aspects of the endeavor taken. Howard (4) writes that successful administration results when the administrator recognizes these facts and when he determines the areas where he has authority and those where he does not.

Three areas where a person must develop administrative skills (as Zeigler (23) elaborates) are: (a) Authority-derived from law; (b) Knowledge-derived from observation and study; and (c) Social usage-derived from life in our culture. He defined administration in its common usage--we think of it as the process of directing people in an endeavor. The administrator has a purpose in mind and uses these three areas to accomplish his set goals. The only problem that arises out of this statement is in the area of directing the workers to fulfill their duties to the best of their abilities. This is where the personality and performance of an administrator play its most difficult role.

Tead (18) emphasizes the simple fact that we are dealing with an idea whose operational success is the result of the interplay of personality and character upon some of the basic elements of managerial activity in some specific setting. He also relates the characteristics which will constitute good administrators are self-confidence, persistence, know-how, cooperativeness, popularity, adaptability, and verbal facility. Tead suggested a list of functions which supplement the above characteristics.

1. The leader initiates action.
2. The leader represents group norms.
3. The leader defines problems and goals.
4. The leader mediates between conflicting interests, both within the organization and between the organization and other groups.

Umbach and Johnson (19) encourage coaches and athletic directors to host wrestling tournaments for personal recognition, not only for themselves but for the schools they represent. The administrator or directors should serve as examples for young participants. When meets are managed well, they are recognized for their educational value and good sportsmanship. Umbach and Johnson (19) clearly state that intelligent planning is essential if meets are to be business-like, attractive, and well-organized sports events.

Checklists

McLaughlin and Pudney (10) dealt with the extreme importance of having a checklist to conduct a wrestling tournament. In reviewing their checklist, each detail was carefully examined. These details are important because it is the little things, which when overlooked, cause unnecessary delays. However, their specific checklist did not include all necessary elements needed to host a tournament of the caliber described in this paper.

Along with McLaughlin and Pudney (10), Root (17) believes that the first necessary item in dealing with a tournament is the development of a checklist. He states that one should always feel that he is putting too many items on the list rather than feel that he has omitted something.

Unlike the above authors, Kenney and Law's (9) checklist did not go into specific areas or into great detail. They did not find it of importance to write down all material on paper to be checked. They did not include such things as equipment or the number of workers needed for the tournament.

Another form of checklist was used by Keen (8). His checklist dealt with a class tournament at the United States Naval Aviation Physical Training Program. Included in his checklist were various types of score sheets, bracketing, and different kinds of elimination tournaments.

One of the better checklists that was reviewed was by Umbach and Johnson (19). It suggested having an eleven man supervisory committee with the following titles areas:

1. Tournament Manager and Assistant
2. Manager of Equipment and Gear
3. The Food and Housing Committee
4. Reception Committee
5. Training and First-Aid
6. Meet Physicians
7. The Announcer
8. The Business Manager
9. The Meet Secretary
10. Publicity Director
11. Tournament Procedure

Each of the above checklists contained good information, but none was complete within itself. With the use of these checklists as a base, the following checklist was designed (see Appendix A).

UTAH HIGH SCHOOL ACTIVITIES ASSOCIATION (UHSAA)
CLASS AAA WRESTLING TOURNAMENT

The following is an organizational breakdown of details that were used in conducting the State AAA Wrestling Tournament.

Pre-Tournament

In June of 1971, Utah State University made application to host the 1972 State AAA Wrestling Tournament. One month later the Utah High School Activities Association Board granted the request with the stipulation that the area be sufficient to sustain four simultaneous matches. We then measured the Spectrum and assured the UHSAA that we could host the tournament.

After clearing the facilities for February 24, 25, and 26, initial steps were taken to host the State AAA Wrestling Meet. The first step was to prepare a checklist to be used as a guideline in setting up the tournament (see Appendix A).

Three months prior to the tournament a meeting was set with the Executive Secretary of the UHSAA to find out exactly what was expected of Utah State as the host school and to establish some guidelines for the tournament.

The following list of events was completed two months prior to the tournament:

1. Six officials were selected by the UHSAA through ballot voting by the coaches and subsequently hired to work the state tournament.

2. Mats were reserved from the following schools: Bear River, Logan, Sky View, and Utah State. The understanding was that they would be picked up by an insured carrier the day before the tournament, delivered to Utah State, and returned to the schools on Monday following the meet. A commercial trucking company was then notified for times of pick up, delivery, and return.

The next step in the organizational procedure for the tournament was the itinerary sheet. The purpose of the itinerary sheet was to help the tournament committee establish a working base so they could plan the activities in a time sequence. The itinerary sheet included things such as: dates, times, places, and events. A copy of the itinerary was sent to all coaches (see Appendix B).

Along with the itinerary sheet, an introductory letter was sent to the coaches (see Appendix C).

A short time later a letter was sent to each school containing a list of motels and restaurants that was available in Logan and the surrounding area (see Appendix D).

One month prior to the tournament, committees were formed to share the responsibilities for the operation of the tournament and a meeting was held with the committee chairmen. The purpose of this meeting was to conduct a general discussion of the tournament, delegate duties to each committee chairman, and answer any questions that may have concerned individual assignments.

Each chairman was responsible for the selection of his committee members from Utah State University student body and staff personnel. All chairmen were chosen for their ability to perform duties in their specific areas. The following committee assignments were made to conduct the tournament:

1. Publicity: The purpose of this committee was to assume the responsibility for all public relation information concerning the tournament. Membership consisted of a chairman and four assistants. The following was a list of committee duties:

I. The tournament director was the arbitrator on any decisions that were made concerning the operation of the meet

Three weeks preceding the tournament, another meeting was held to see the progress that each committee was making, and to give any suggestions to other committees that would help make the tournament a success. Two high school coaches were asked to attend the meeting to help solve problems related to high school wrestling.

A follow-up letter was sent to remind all coaches of the buffet lunch. This letter was to request a count of coaches who would be attending the function (see Appendix K).

The next week and a half was spent dealing with the committees on an individual basis to make sure that they were progressing according to schedule.

The week before the state tournament, the high schools held their qualifying meets at the regional level. All region results were telephoned into the UHSAA main office where they were compiled and forwarded to us for inclusion in the tournament program.

Two days before the tournament, another organizational meeting for all personnel working with the tournament was held. At this time, worker's passes were distributed to all concerned. Another meeting was scheduled the day before the tournament. The purpose of this final meeting was to have a practice run for all timers, scorers, runners, head scorers, announcers, mat crew, and trainers. Everything was prepared the day before and ready for the UHSAA AAA Wrestling Tournament.

During Tournament

The first day, two secretaries were assigned to help with registration. During registration each coach was given a packet for each participant. Included in this packet was a welcome letter from the President of Utah State University (see Appendix I), a brochure telling about the university, and a map of the city and campus. Name tags were also distributed to the coaches at registration and participants passes were made available.

The coaches' meeting was next on the agenda. While the coaches were attending the meeting, the officials conducted weigh-ins in the locker room. Three scales with four weight classes per scale were in use. A physician was at weigh-ins to check for infections, in accordance with the NCAA rules.

Twenty minutes before the first round, opening ceremonies were conducted. All participants marched to the mat in uniform, followed by all the high school coaches. There was a short welcoming speech and the National Anthem. The floor was then cleared for the start of the 1971 UHSAA AAA Wrestling Tournament.

Four mats were used for the first session. The total time for the first round was approximately 3 and 1/2 hours. There were 96 bouts completed.

The second day started with an Athletic Injury Clinic for coaches and student trainers. Everyone in attendance seemed to benefit from the clinic (see Appendix G).

The second session was divided into two rounds. The first round was the quarter-finals for the winners bracket. A total of 48 matches was wrestled in that round. Immediately following the second round in the winners bracket, the first round of the consolation bracket was held. Again, there was a total of 48 matches wrestled. During the entire session four mats were used.

The third session, semi-finals, was held that evening on two mats. There was a total of 24 matches held that evening. The winners of these matches advanced into the championship round.

Immediately following the third session, a buffet was held for all coaches and workers.

The third and final day of the tournament opened with weigh-ins for all contestants. A two pound weight allowance was given to each participant in accordance with the NCAA rule book that governs tournaments and weigh-in times on consecutive days.

Following weigh-ins a continuation of the Athletic Injuries clinic was held for all interested coaches and trainers.

The fourth session was concerned with the consolation bracket only. Two mats were used to hold three rounds or a total of 60 matches. The winners of the last round advanced into the consolation finals to be held that evening.

The fifth and final session held that evening was divided into two rounds. The first round was the consolation finals for third and fourth places. These were held on two mats and a total of twelve matches was held.

The second round was the championship matches which were held on one mat. There was a total of twelve matches wrestled.

Preceding the championship matches, opening ceremonies were held which consisted of introductions of participants, a performance by a precision drill team, the National Anthem, and the introduction of dignitaries.

There was a total of 288 wrestling matches held during the three days of the tournament.

Post-Tournament

All gate receipts were given to the representative of the UHSAA immediately after the completion of the tournament.

On the Monday following the tournament, a financial report was prepared and sent to the UHSAA (see Appendix F). This report was taken before the UHSAA Board for approval. One check was sent to Utah State University to cover expenses.

All borrowed equipment such as stop watches, tables, chairs, microphones, and clocks was returned on the Monday following the tournament.

On that same Monday, all mats were returned to the high schools.

A final copy of the results was sent to the following:

1. Executive Secretary UHSAA
2. Each participating team
3. Local television stations
4. Area radio stations
5. Major newspapers

Each first place, individual winner received a picture of the champions. The winning team, as well as the second place finisher, was sent a photograph.

Results were sent to the Official Collegiate Scholastic Wrestling Guide for publication in 1973.

The officials were paid by the UHSAA.

Upon completion of the tournament, letters of thanks were sent to everyone affiliated with the tournament. A letter of appreciation was sent to each school for the conduct of its wrestler during the state tournament (see Appendix L).

DISCUSSION

An analysis and evaluation of the 1972 Utah High School Activities Association Class AAA Wrestling Tournament by committee chairmen, provided the following comments and suggestions.

Over all the organization and administration of the tournament was considered a success by many of the coaches and participants in the tournament. One of the chairmen working with the tournament felt it functioned adequately and provided the type of competition desired.

Several items were commented as being very favorable toward the success of the tournament:

1. Physical arrangements
 - A. General appearance--good
 - B. General facilities--extremely clean
2. Conduct of Tournament
 - A. Efficiency of scorers and timers
 - B. Announcing
 - C. Use of runners with limited time remaining in each round
 - D. Quality of runners
3. Program
 - A. Appearance
 - B. Usefulness

It was felt by most of the committee chairmen that the following list of items should have had some improvement:

- A. Control of traffic on the gymnasium floor
- B. Control of traffic and parking outside the Spectrum
- C. The use of period markers

In general, financially, the tournament was as successful as it has been in the past years. The over all organization and administration of the tournament seemed to contribute to the financial success and the enjoyment by the participants and spectators. Very few problems arose that were not anticipated by the committee before the meet.

Appendix L: Letter of Thanks

EN TAGGART, PRESIDENT
ANK WILLIAMS, DIRECTOR

BIG BLUE COUNTRY

DEPARTMENT OF ATHLETICS • LOGAN, UTAH 84321

March 20, 1972

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for helping make the AAA State Wrestling Tournament the great success that it was. Everyone connected with the tournament expressed their feelings on how well the wrestlers represented their schools. This, I feel, is a tribute to you as a coach. The sport is growing with leaps and bounds every year. It is very reassuring to know that we are turning out such fine gentleman in our wrestling program.

A special thanks is in order for the people who supported the hospitality room and coaches' party and also the clinic. These same organizations have been supporting the wrestling program for years. It is only fitting that I mention their names for special consideration: Athletic Supply, Shulsen and Dillon, Stevens and Browns, Wolfe's Sporting Goods and the 50-50 Club at U.S.U.

In the near future if you have any suggestions that would help make this tournament run even smoother the next time, I would appreciate hearing from you.

I hope you have an enjoyable summer. Thanks again for your support during the state tournament.

Sincerely,

Bob Carlson
Head Wrestling Coach
